The bachelor's degree in User Experience and Interaction Design at Columbia College Chicago trains you to be a technologically competent designer and a design-minded developer. You'll learn how to design with users in mind and how to be an independent professional who relies not on narrow technical skills but on best practices and theories of human-computer interaction. You'll be tested and challenged in this bachelor's degree program, and through your successes and mistakes you'll learn and grow as an artist, a student, and a professional.
