Our Internet and Mobile Media program is ideal for students with self-directed vision and drive; DIY media-makers whose projects don't fit the mold of traditional television production. We offer a blend of theory and practice in an environment that allows you to broaden the work you already do. You'll study how to use YouTube, emerging media platforms, and analytics to enhance your social media brand and discover new ways to reach your audience. Learn more at colum.edu/academics.

Students that complete this agreement in full will not be required to take TELE 272 Motion Graphics Photoshop Bootcamp at Columbia.

Columbia College Chicago participates in the Illinois Articulation Initiative (IAI). Students who complete the AAS degree prior to transferring to Columbia College Chicago have the choice of completing the IAI General Education Core Curriculum (GECC) at Columbia or the Columbia Core Curriculum. Students will work with their Columbia advisor on the best course of action. Additionally, all degree-seeking Columbia students are required to complete 9 credit hours of 200-level (or higher) coursework, Columbia Experience courses as indicated, as well as at least 6 credit hours of courses with a Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) designation to meet graduation requirements.

Outside the Classroom

As a TV student, you'll learn to make television in cutting-edge studios, postproduction suites, soundstages, and a state-of-the-art remote media truck. Here are a few other examples of opportunities available to TV students:

- Frequency TV: Columbia's student-run television station, featuring news, talks, comedy series, and more.
- DocYourWorld: An annual two-day event showcasing nonfiction content produced by students, faculty members, and alumni from several departments at Columbia.
- Student organizations: TV students are active in a number of campus groups, such as the Television Arts Collective and the Columbia College Chicago Comedy Club.

Internships

Chicago is a major media market filled with internship opportunities. Students from our department have recently interned with agencies, production companies, shows, and venues like:

- the APA Agency
- Bigfoot Media
- Cards Against Humanity
- Chicago Film Archives
- Showtime Networks
- Universal Music Group
